WE NOMINATE

The 20-plus Princetonians, representing Town, Gown and many of the organizations more concerned with the continued forward movement of the Princeton Community than they are with any one aspect of Princeton Life, who have brought into being The Princeton Forum on Individual Liberties. At a time when the ever-mounting pressures of the "cold war" are causing more and more persons to think hard about the amount of individual liberty which can be guaranteed in a world of unrest, it is heartening to have seeing citizens promote public discussions dedicated to broadening the "grass-roots understanding of the principles of American civil liberties and constitutional government."

Next week, with four different groups of Princetonians (Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings) launching once-a-week meetings continuing through April, Princeton will become one of the 500 or more centers in the United States and Alaska participating in the so-called Freedom Agenda Program, best described as a plan for broad popular education in the fundamentals of American liberty. Financially supported by the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Republic, the program in its nationwide aspects is being sponsored by the Carrie Chapman Catt Memorial Fund, Inc., a research and educational fund created by the League of Women Voters of the United States.

In keeping with the Princeton tradition of drafting experts for volunteer activities, the neighborhood groups studying the Bill of Rights, and its application to contemporary problems, will benefit from the guidance of authorities in such fields as "political behavior," "political theories and comparative government," "constitutional interpretation and law" and "American political thought." The Monday evening group at the Witherspoon Y.M.C.A., for instance, will be led by William Merritt Beaney Jr., Bicentennial Preceptor in the University's Department of Politics and an Army infantry veteran, while Harold William Chase, a Purple Heart survivor of Iwo Jima and Assistant Professor in the Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, will direct the Thursday sessions at the Borough Public Library.

The Tuesday and Wednesday evening meetings, the former in the Methodist Church and the latter at the Prospect Avenue home of the Seymour Goodhearts, will be under the joint leadership of four other members of the University Faculty. Gabriel Almond, William Ebenstein, Charles Grier Sellers Jr. and Lloyd Manning Wells. Almond authored last fall's widely heralded The Appeals of Communism, the culmination of a four-year research project, and Ebenstein, one of the great teachers of his time and a native of Austria, has written and edited ten major works in the past 15 years. Both Sellers, North Carolina-born Bicentennial Preceptor in History, and Wells, 31-year old alumnus of Southwest Missouri College, completed their military service with distinction before earning college degrees.

For organizing a "remarkable community adventure in the discussion of freedom;" for taking time in the hectic present to re-emphasize the importance and meaning of the Bill of Rights, the hallmark of American democracy; for promoting the kind of healthy atmosphere in which only government of, for and by the people can thrive; these sponsors and discussion-leaders are Town Topics' nominees for School Report. Township residents this week were given first specific details of the projected elementary school to be built on the site near Littlebrook and Roper Roads. Information was provided on the anticipated number of classrooms, the grades which will be shifted there and the rate of growth forecast for enrollment in the next five years.

A referendum last February approved purchase of a seven-acre tract owned in the township by Princeton borough. Now the Board of Education has set these dates as milestones along the path toward completion of the project:

April 13 — A public meeting to permit the board to explain plans for the new building.

A month or so later—A second meeting, at which architects' plans for the school will be shown and first information on the anticipated cost will be made public.

Late May or early June—A referendum seeking approval on the necessary bond issue to finance the undertaking.

September, 1956 — Completion of the building in time for use during the school year.

This week's statement outlining policy on the size and educational scope of the proposed school sets forth three primary points:

- The building will contain 20 classrooms and two kindergarten rooms, as well as other facilities considered essential and practical.
- The school will house all sections of grades one through four, with the kindergarten sections to be divided between the new building and the Stony Brook School. The latter currently has them all.
- All sections of grades five through eight will be retained at the Valley Road School.

Future Enrollment Figures. An eight-man committee, headed by James A. Perkins, chairman of the board of education's Educational Requirements Committee, has prepared these basic recommendations, which stem from a thorough analysis of the present crowded conditions at Valley Road. Taken into account, too, are startling enrollment figures projected in a survey conducted by Dr. Milton Steinhaur of Rutgers University.

From 1950, when public school enrollment in the municipalty was 572, it has increased to a current 886. In another five years, it is estimated to be 1,349—an increase in a decade of an amazing 135%.

With an eye to maintaining proper instruction standards, the board will seek to maintain the Princeton alumni, who annually set a national record for the percentage of men returning to their class reunions, this week came up with a new promotion stunt designed to boost attendance. The wife of every member of the Class of 1935, whose 20th reunion occurs this spring, received an airmail, perfumed letter from Paris.

Signed by the class reunion committee, the letter urges its recipients: "Don't wait for him to suggest bringing YOU back—you bring HIM back!" In contrast to earlier years, when reunion weekends relegated the housewife strictly to the home, class reunions are now planned largely with the entire family in mind. In taking over the Columbus Boy Choir School as headquarters for wives and children, 1935 promises them: their own swimming pool in a 20-acre estate; a theatre party for the mothers; pony rides, motion pictures and treasure hunts for the children.

size of classes in grades one through four at 25 or less and of classes in grades five through eight at a maximum of 30. "At the present time," it points out, "15 of the 28 classes at Valley Road exceed these maximums."

Crowded facilities at Valley Road today are "detracting from the effectiveness in various subjects, and threatening other facilities," the statement declares. Among the instructional problems encountered are those in the fields of science, industrial arts and music, while space in the library, cafeteria and gymnasium is considered inadequate.

To Retain Progress. With an end to segregation achieved several years ago, the committee issuing the report took special pains to point out that a policy of enrolling pupils in the school nearest to which they live would inevitably result largely in a return to such an undesirable situation. It commented:

"The committee gave very serious consideration to keeping some classes of the lower grades in the Valley Road School as a convenience to those who live near this school, but realized that such a plan would, in effect, place all the Negro children in the Valley Road School classes of any particular primary grade. The Committee does not wish to recommend a program that would serve to establish segregated schools. While the committee realizes that those who live near the Valley Road School building may be disappointed that their children in primary grades will be taken from Valley Road School to the new building by bus, after weighing the concern for transportation against the concern for equal racial disposition among the grades and classes, the committee believes the latter principle is more important than the former inconvenience."

To make sure that township residents will be fully aware of their municipality's booming rate of population increase, the board points out in closing that a 20-classroom building may soon be inadequate. Eight more rooms may well be needed by the fall of 1961, it reports.

A school with 20 classrooms now is recommended as the "conservative approach," but three alternatives for relatively immediate expansion are set forth: an additional wing at the new school, increased facilities at Valley Road, or a third and smaller neighborhood school building. An eye should be kept on the projected population trend in the next two years to determine its accuracy. While the board does not say so, there are indications everywhere today that if the population estimate for the next five years errs, it will be on the downward side.

Fulmer and Bowers Named. The Township school board also announced this week that it had retained the firm of Fulmer & Bowers, Architects, of 341 Nassau Street to plan and supervise the building of the new school. The choice was made unanimously after numerous applicants had been considered and more than a score of representative schools in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania had been visited.

Mr. Fulmer, who has been associated with Mr. Bowers for the past three years and is a resident of Ober Road, has devoted his time as an architect to large-scale housing, city planning and schools. Among the latter are buildings he has designed in Nyack and Pearl River, N. Y., as well as two elementary and one high school in Bridgeton.

Mr. Bowers, long a township resident and member of the Lewis C. Bowers & Sons construction firm, has expressed pleasure at the opportunity to plan a building program in Princeton. His firm will not, however, bid on the building contracts, he has announced.

Vaccinations Tentatively Set. Nearly 10,000 pupils in the first and second grades of Mercer County's public, private and parochial schools will probably have an opportunity to receive the Salk polio vaccination without charge in the next few weeks.

A final decision is still forthcoming, due in part to differences in medical opinions as to the value of the vaccine. However, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralyis has indicated that it will make available to school health departments within the county sufficient vaccine for the program. It is provided without cost as it is part of the $9,000,000 supply purchased with March of Dimes Fnuds.

County and diocese officials are working on advance preparation for the large scale vaccinations. Individual schools are now working out plans for parent education as well as for the issuing of "request forms" to be signed by parents.

Parents of children in the grades involved at the Valley Road School and Mrs. Chapin's will be called together for the first informational meeting here this Friday at 2 o'clock. St. Paul's School has scheduled its meeting to explain the program for this coming Tuesday at 7 in the school.

The meeting for Township and Mrs. Chapin's pupils, with vaccinations scheduled for April 25, will be conducted by Miss Eleanor Hutchinson, school nurse, and Mrs Bertha M. Eisenmann, superintendent of schools. Those taking part will include a representative of the state board of health, Mrs. Emily Wisely; Dr. Alfred D. Summers, school doctor; Dr. William Kleinberg, Township health officer; Mrs. William Kefes, executive secretary of the state polio association; Dr. Thomas Harvey, chairman of the PTA health committee, and Dr. Warren G. Findley, PTA president.

The Borough school system is planning to issue information to parents in the immediate future, probably in the form of an explanatory letter with an accompanying request form.

Miss Fine's School is completing plans for a meeting to be held in the near future. The board of education in West Windsor Township has approved administration of the vaccine to first and second grade children whose parents request it and expects to announce vaccination dates shortly.

Re-Enter: The Seminary Library. Back in the news again this week is the new library proposed to meet the now urgent needs of Princeton Theological Seminary. The projected new structure was the subject of a lengthy statement by Dr. John A. Mackay, president of the Seminary.

Reviewing in detail the background of the situation, which has produced lively discussion chiefly over the fate of the institution's existing Lenox Library, Dr. Mackay also reported that the plans have altered so that the new building's "austerity has been softened" and that "the construction will be of stone," instead of brick as orignally planned last year.

Dr. Mackay further reported that the trustees of the adjoining Swann Estate (which includes Borough Hall) have consented to an easement of light and air requirements. Thus, if the Borough Council will also give its consent, the matter may be presented to the courts for final approval.

In his statement, the Seminary

It's New to Us

Favorite Favorki. Blintz fans who relish the products of Mrs. Elly Lupinska's kitchen may now reach for a favorki—the national cooky of so many central European countries. Mrs. Lupinska says that when she demonstrated favorki at Macy's, she heard exclamations from the crowd around her, "Why those are like the ones my grandmother used to make!"

"Favorki" is the generic name, so to speak. They are chrusciki in Polish, csoroge in Hungarian, hosenblazen in Yiddish, and fritels in English. We'll stick with favorki.

The cooky (on sale at the Nassau Delicatessen, 45 Palmer Square) comes 24 to a box, frozen. After paying your 59c, you take them home and heat an inch or so of deep fat. Drop them in for half a minute on each side, then roll in powdered sugar.

They are about six inches long, twisted like an elongated figure eight, with an extremely delicate flavor that is not at all rich. Magnificent with hot black coffee—we could have eaten all 24.

At Macy's, Mrs. Lupinska used to sell the cooky ready to eat at 98c a dozen. So for the few minutes' time you spend heating fat and testing in the favorki you pay about one-fourth the price.

Another new product is the Lupinska macaroni and cheese, first in a new line of good sturdy every-day foods, that a working housewife can toss into an oven and use as the basis for a hearty meal. Two ample servings or three average ones come in a heavy foil dish that you slide into a pre-heated oven for 15 minutes or so. Price is only 29c.

The dish is creamy and delicate with the sharpest cheese Mrs. Lupinska could find. Later you'll be able to buy her baked beans, scalloped potatoes and sweet potatoes with marshmallows, all at the lowest possible price.

These casserole dishes are available at Davidson's, 172 Nassau; Union Food Market, 203 Witherspoon; Nassau Delicatessen, 45 Palmer Square; Bovino's, 39 Leigh Avenue; the Food Mart, 20 Witherspoon; and Cox's Store, 182 Nassau.

Clothing Hospital Opens. A hot news bulletin from the University Cleaners announces the opening of a "clothing hospital" to provide a clinic for the care of weak and ailing garments. The release tells us that "patients will be admitted for zipperectomies (removal and replacement of zippers); suturing of snags and tears; plastic surgery on damaged garments that do not fit properly; and rehabilitation of cigarette burns through skilled reweaving.

"Shirts that have fallen ill through wear may have their lives extended by having collars turned or new ones grafted on. Snowsuits that have become sickly at the wrists may likewise be returned to serviceable status by having new cuffs attached.

"As with all well-run hospitals, the Clothing Hospital expects to discharge its patients promptly. Such cases as TB (tears and buttons) will be treated in a matter of a few hours. More complicated cases involving major surgery (tailoring) may require a few days of hospitalization."

A uniformed "nurse" is at work ministering to the "patients" in the window at University Cleaners' Shopping Center branch. It is not, incidentally, necessary to go there to take advantage of this new service. University's drivers will pick up any articles you may have for them, or you can go to the 30 Moore Street plant or the new branch office at 36 Nassau.

One added angle is new, too. A price list for virtually every type of service along these lines has been prepared by manager John A. Archer. You can find out in advance just what each "operation" will cost.

Ruffled. Here is one situation in which a young lady does not wish to be unruffled. We refer, of course, to any occasion requiring a formal. The new spring ones at the French Shop, 20 Nassau, are long or short, as you choose, but ruffled every one.

A junior size might feel pretty important in a coral nylon tricot with full skirt, beaded waist and a draped halter over just one shoulder. It seems that Elizabeth Taylor wore this model in "Elephant Walk" and if she can, why can't a French Shop customer?

A long formal in aqua has a cascade of ruffles down the left hip with small plush leaves sewn

Obituaries

Mrs. Grace M. Turner, 91, widow of Horatio W. Turner of Mansgrove Lane, died March 23 in a Windsor nursing home. Born in a Windsor nursing home, Born in New Orleans, La., she had lived in Princeton for 57 years.

When a group of women in Princeton In 1897 attacked the problem of providing good meals at low prices for freshmen and sophomores at Princeton University, Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, one of the group's leaders, brought her widowed cousin, Mrs. Turner, from New Orleans to supervise the project. After the successful establishment of facilities in Guyot House, located where Holder Hall now stands, the benefactions of Mrs. Russell Sage and others led to the building of the present Commons and Holder Hall.

The University presented the old Guyot House to Mrs. Turner, who moved it to Greenholm. Woodrow Wilson was once noted to have remarked, "The Trustees watch over two institutions, the University and Mrs. Turner."

She is survived by two sons, Horatio W. of Princeton and William F. of Sacramento, Calif., both of whom were graduated from Princeton; six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held Saturday at the home of her son at Mansgrove, with interment in Princeton Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary H. Morris, 56, wife of S. Oscar Morris, Sr. of 339 Princeton Road, Plainsboro, died March 24 in Princeton Hospital. Born in Charlotte Courthouse, Va., she had lived in this area for 27 years and was a teacher in the Sunday School of the Plainsboro Presbyterian Church.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, S. Oscar, Jr., now with the Army at Fort Richie, Pa.; a brother, a sister, and a half-sister. A service in the Presbyterian Church was followed by interment in Brainerd Cemetery, Cranbury.

Russell A. Cook, 57, a former director of the Princeton University Orchestra, died March 22 in Bangor, Me. He had for a number of years conducted music groups at Princeton and Harvard Universities.

A violinist, Mr. Cook retired as conductor of the Portland Symphony Orchestra in 1951 after 14 years of service. A native of Unity, Me., he had been a music consultant to the Bronxville schools, had taught at Harvard and conducted in Hawaii. He was scheduled to conduct in Kansas City this summer.

president reported once again the difficulties experienced in trying to find a proper site for a library building which will meet the needs of the enlarged institution, and reiterated the suitability of the traditional site on Library Place.

Asking understanding and cooperation for the new project, Dr. Mackay pointed out, "I am sorry to say that our present library buildings, while they contain one of the finest collections of religious literature in the world, are not fireproof. . . . They are, moreover, hopelessly inadequate to provide the facilities which Princeton Seminary needs for its growth.

"The projected building will be completely fireproof. It will be architecturally worthy of Princeton's concern for artistic design, and will facilitate the educational development of one of its oldest institutions."

Dr. Mackay's statement did not deal with the fate of the presently inadequate library buildings. However, obvious engineering problems and prohibitive costs make it clear that the probable fate of old Lenox Library is not transplanting but destruction.

Under-Selling Brings Penalty. A charge of selling liquor at prices below the minimum permissible in New Jersey has resulted in an order to The Wine and Game Shop to close for 25 days. Five days were remitted by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission for the plea of non vult, with the result that the store at 6 Nassau Street will be shut from April 5 through April 24.

The Commission charged that last December, the Wine and Game Shop sold 16 cases and 25 additional bottles to a customer for a total cost of $1,057.85. This is listed in the charge as a 10% discount, whereas state regulations stipulate that 5% on case lots is the maximum discount permissible.

The store is further reported as having at a later date in the same month sold $201.53 worth of whiskey, representing three additional cases, to the same customer. This is also cited as a discount of 10%, and accordingly is listed as a second violation.

The Commission notes that while the store's record is otherwise clear, a "greater-than-usual penalty is not only warranted but required" because of the quantities of alcoholic beverages involved. It added that "the defendants fully cooperated in the investigation and made no effort to conceal the facts."

Canteen Attendance Grows. With some 400 membership cards already issued, attedance at the High School Canteen on Saturday evenings at the Green Street "Y" Center last week reached a new peak of 350. The canteen will be open this Saturday evening, but will skip April 9, the night before Easter.

Officers for the Canteen were elected on Saturday and chairmen of standing committees chosen. Robert Ritchie was named as the first president, with Howard Calkin, vice-president; Ronald Mucha, treasurer, and Sandy Berrand, secretary.

Chairmen of the seven committees whose heads comprise the Canteen Council are Clodius Willis, chaperones; Lawrence Dilworth, publicity; Sandra Northcross, equipment; Melanie McGilvra and Sandra Pritchard, pro-

Lawrenceville Topics

Lawrenceville Tips. Included in the column this week is a report on a shopping tour through Lawrenceville's stores. As a means of letting residents know what's available and what's new in local shops, the feature will be carried here periodically.

Red Cross Drive Reaches Goal. Reports on the annual drive conducted in Lawrenceville for the Red Cross show that the area has topped its goal of $2200 and that the few missing reports are likely to put the total above last year's $2279.

William A. French, branch chairman and general chairman of this year's drive, has expressed his thanks to all contributors and to the captains and coworkers who have assisted in the campaign.

Polio Vaccine for Lawrence. With county-wide administration of the Salk polio vaccine for first and second grade pupils considered highly likely, parents of children in those grades in Lawrence public schools appear to be heavily in favor of the vaccinations for their children.

Superintendent of Schools Harry H. Pratt reports that returns from a letter sent to all parents concerned are coming in steadily and that the first vaccination date has been tentatively set for April 28. School Doctor William V. Carroll and Nurse Marion O. Halliday will direct the program.

Kick the Can. Two Trenton drivers managed a two-car crash on the Lawrenceville-Princeton road which caused estimated damages of $350 to their autos when an ash can was blown into their path by Monday's strong winds.

One driver halted his car suddenly to avoid hitting the can, and the car behind him was unable to stop in time. The resulting crash was witnessed by Chief Joseph Stonicker and Patrolman Joseph J. Olessi. Nothing happened to the ash can.

Easter Parade. A fashion show and entertainment program will be presented by Lawrenceville Girl Scout Troop No. 38 this Saturday evening at 7:30 in the youth center of Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church. No admission will be charged, but contributions will be accepted towards a trip by the Scouts to New York.

Patrol mothers include Mrs. Edward Hally, Mrs. John H. Dill, Mrs. Alfred Coley, Mrs. Edward Skellenger and Miss Marilyn Jones. Mrs. J. Y. Martl will play the piano for the choruses, while Scout pianists will include Edna Servis, Cathy Skellenger, Lois Tilton, Peggy Donaldson, Cathy Hurley and Barbara Updike. Diane Grover and Edith Poinsett will narrate.

Propane and Potato Chips. Shopping in Lawrenceville is like cooking in a kitchen that is small but perfectly appointed. All the ingredients are at hand and once you start the job is quickly done. Here, within the space of a hundred yards you can buy prime ribs of beef, men's socks, garden tools, personalized ashtrays and a baseball bat.

To the right of the light on Phillips you'll find the Lawrenceville Meat Market and some excellent cuts of beef, plump fowl, juicy breakfast sausages and the national products of such packers as Rath, Armour and Swift. This market does a brisk retail trade with residents of Princeton and Lawrenceville and also sells meat wholesale to many Princeton eating places.

Two tailoring shops — Wasko's and Pearl's — offer services that include both new work and alterations for men and women. At Pearl's there is a real fandango of a man's vest: a white corduroy with small Pennsylvania Dutch figures in orange, black and olive green. Quieter residents of Pearl's include some walking shorts for men and women done in grey flannel, fine chiro with plaid belt or khaki——perhaps 15 to 20 different styles. There are dacron sports shirts for men and the popular Lady Manhattans for women.

At Wasko's we found Botany ties, men's jewelry by Shields, vests in acetate and cotton that look like printed linen, and acetate sport jackets in riotous colors like bright aqua and russet.

During April (Hardware Week falls at this time), Lawrenville Hardware will offer a combination stove and blow-torch for $11.95 or combination lantern and blow-torch for $12.95. Propone is the fuel and the little tank will last 20 hours before you turn it in on a $1.95 new one. Stove lights without a pump, burns without smoke. Also in this store — 300 varieties of perennials, annuals later when it's warm enough. Buy a Bard-Matic garbage eliminator for $39.95—leaves you only four shovelfuls of compost at the end of a year's garbage dumping.

The Jigger Shop offers, besides cokes and such, a converter to make a lamp out of a bottle, and a line of personalized leatherette casters and mats. Student lamps, too—the little brass ones.

At Bentley's, a miniature super-market, we found Mazola's No-Roll pie crust mix that you make right in the piepan, shelves of Crosse and Blackwell products, some pork sausage made in Lambertville and a coffee you can grind to your own taste.

As you might guess, the baseball bats come from Stout's Sport Shop which seems, to our inexperienced eye, to have quite a complete stock for its small quarters.

Down Lawrence Road two miles, you'll find Clark's Floor Covering Shop, featuring at the moment Armstrong's Exalon—vinyl plastic, asbestos, spatter-printed tile. Install it yourself with instructions from a record. Listen to the 78 rpm voice, follow the accompanying booklet and you'll be floored in no time. Other products: linoleum by yard or rug, furniture rests, formica counter tops, stair treads, window shades and Sherwin-Williams paint.

Music in Princeton

Concert-Opera Well Received. The legendary events which preceded the Trojan War were depicted Tuesday night in McCarter Theater in a concert-opera version by the American Opera Society. The opera presented was Gluck's "Paris and Helen," the last of Gluck's so-called "reform operas." The preceding "reform operas" were "Orfeo" and "Alceste."

Paris was played by Paul Frank; Helen by Marquita Moll, and Venus by Sarah Fleming. All of the principles performed admirably. It was unfortunate that their singing and that of the chorus was obscured at times by the orchestra, which should have been either softer or else condemned to the pit.

Paul Frank possesses a fine tenor voice, but had a tendency to slide up into his notes during the first act. His infonation improved as the opera progressed. Sarah Fleming handled her aria and cadenza, Nell'idea ch'ei volge in mente, with artistry that enhanced her lovely voice.

The prominence Gluck gives to the harp is interesting. In "Orfeo," the harp is the symbol of Orpheus' undying love for Euridice. In "Paris and Helen," the harp is also connected with Eros, for it is the accompaniment of the harp which predominates in Paris' passionate love song, which precedes the final duet in Act I. The music for the Athletes Ballet was appropriately vigorous, characterized by a doubly-dotted eighth note-thirty second note rhythm.

The essence of Gluck's advanced operatic technique is found in Pallas Athena's aria, "Tingannt! Here all the tension of Athena's Trojan War curse is clearly evident in the music.

While Athena casts her imprecation and the chorus warns Paris and Helen of the disastrous consequences of their elopement, the double basses and cellos growl out an ominus fate-motive which is not too distant from the double bass-cello rumblings in Wagner's Faust Overture.

It was a treat to experience a performance of Gluck's rarely presented opera. The concert-goers of Princeton are quite grateful to the American Opera Society.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Green Fire (Mar. 30 - April 2) offers a conventional adventure melodrama with Stewart Granger, Grace Kelly and Paul Douglas as the stars. The South American emerald-and-coffee story is well below the talents of this trio. Action and plot are designed for the so-called mass audience, accompanied by CinemaScope photography in color.

Camille (April 3-5) brings back the fabulous Greta Garbo in the screen romance based on the Dumas fils' sentimental tragedy of a sad and noble lady. Others in the cast of the re-issue are Robert Taylor, Henry Daniel, Laura Hope Crews, Lionel Barrymore and Lenore Ulric.

The Racers (April 10-12) starring Kirk Douglas has been rescheduled here. Douglas plays a mean and rough driver in Europe's sports car world who fights his way to the top. The CinemaScope color camera catches many a thrill of the sport, and the European scenes are eye-filling. Bella Darvi and Gilbert Roland are also starred.

THE GARDEN

Many Rivers to Cross (Mar. 31-April 2) is on off-beat western, one that includes much comedy of the frontier-girl-gets-frontiersman type among its action sequences. Eleanor Parker and Robert Taylor are the principals, assisted by Victor McLaglen and others. In color and CinemaScope.

The Robe (April 4 - 6), which launched CinemaScope and wide screens in Princeton, returns here for an engagement at The Garden. The film is based on the Lloyd C. Douglas best-seller about the supernatural power of the robe of Christ. Richard Burton, Jean Simmons, Victor Mature, Michael Rennie and Jay Robinson are the featured players in the production.

Adventures of Hajji Baba (April 7-9) has such a fantastic and screwy collection of melodramatics, action, girl bandits and such that it's funny. CinemaScope and color cameras create a Hollywood medieval Persia. The maiden contingent headed by Elaine Stewart features flimsy costuming, while John Derek and Thomas Gomez head the male Arabian Nights group.

Intime Plans. An evening of original one-act plays written by undergraduates and a major production of Congreve's "Love for Love" remain on the schedule for the current season of Theatre Intime, the University theatrical organization which holds forth at Murray Theatre.

The evening of one-actors, an annual experimental event designed to encourage writing talent on the campus as well as give an extra chance to both newcomers and Intime "regulars" to take part in productions, will be presented Thursday through Saturday, April 21, 22, 23.

There is no admission charge for the one-acters. The prize-winning effort this year is "At the Gates," by Patrick J. Smith '55. The other plays which will be produced are two of the three which tied for second place, "La Joconde" by Charles A. Fried '56 and "Shark Reflections" by Clement Cohen '56.

"Love for Love" will be the major spring production. It will open Houseparty Weekend and continue through the following week. The dates are May 5 to 14.

Bucks Theatre Opens May 13. The Bucks County Playhouse, the barn theatre in New Hope which holds a high position on the strawhat circuit, has announced that it will again have an early season opening, Friday, May 13, this year.

The first production will be the comedy hit "King of Hearts" by Jean Kerr and Eleanor Brooks, with Kim Hunter, Jerome Cowan and Biff McGuire in the cast. "Reclining Figure" by Harry Kurnitz will open May 23, while William Inge's "Picnic" will run for two weeks starting May 30. The Bucks production of the latter will be the first for the hit since the road company closed.

The season at New Hope will total 24 weeks, continuing through October 29. Booking has begun for theatre parties, with special discounts available to organizations every evening except Saturdays. Parties given for char-

Red Cross Nominations Opened. The Princeton Chapter of the American Red Cross has opened nominations for officers and four members of the board of directors for the coming year, according to Harold E. Zarker, chapter chairman. The election will be held at the annual meeting of the chapter in May.

The offices to be filled and the present incumbents, whose terms expire in May, are: chapter chairman, Mr. Zarker; first vice-chairman, Paul C. Alford, Jr.; second vice-chairman, H. Stewart Peyton; secretary, Mrs. Gerald Nelson; treasurer, Dr. Albert Westefeld; assistant treasurer, Willis Neilley, Jr. The four members of the board whose terms also end in May include Mrs. Herbert Langfeld, Harold Kines, Bryan Moore and George Conover.

Dr. James Wakelin is chairman of the nominating committee. Members of this committee include Mrs. Thomas Mederos, Jr., Mrs. Frederick Milholland, Mrs. T. Morgan Harris, George Conover and C. William Edwards.

Mr. Zarker has announced that anyone who contributes to the current Red Cross campaign is a qualified contributing member of the American Red Cross and may place names in nomination for any of these offices. "With membership goes the privilege to nominate and vote for officers and directors, and members are urged to exercise that privilege," he stated.

Members who have contributed to this year's drive in the amount of the $1.00 membership fee can mail their nominations along with their own name and address to Dr. James Wakelin, Princeton Red Cross Chapter, 71 University Place.

The Princeton chapter has sent out a call for blood donors with type "O-negative" blood. Donors are urgently needed because patients at Princeton Hospital, for which the chapter maintains a free blood bank, recently required 30 pints of O-negative blood during a seven-day period. Donors are asked to call Red Cross Headquarters (2404).

Sixteen women and two men took the Motor Service examinations to become certified drivers on call to drive blood donors to the Princeton Hospital and canteen workers and Gray Ladies to Fort Dix Army Hospital. The tests were given under the supervision of the New Jersey State Department of Law and Public Safety.

Those taking the examinations included Mrs. Benjamin Brown, Mrs. F. J. Merrigan, Mrs. E. L. VanZandt, Mrs. Einar Owren, Mrs. Francis Chambers, Miss Amelia Trani, Mrs. Martin McKee, Mrs. Philip Shays, Mrs. Sylvia Loux, Mrs. Marion Van Dorn, Mrs. T. M. Engle, Miss Shirley Owens, Mrs. Anna Rehfeldt, Miss Marie Hafenmaier, Mrs. Minot Morgan, Miss Joan Smith, Joseph Miller and Paul Starkey.

Book Sale Dates Set. The 24th annual Bryn Mawr Book Sale has been scheduled for April 27 through 29 as the result of plans made at a luncheon last week at the home of Mrs. Alan Carrick. The sale, sponsored by the Bryn Mawr Club of Princeton with proceeds to be used for scholarships to Bryn Mawr College, will be held in the Chambers Street Fire House. Those attending the luncheon included Miss Frances Jones, president of the club; Mrs. Arthur Sherwood of Pennington, Mrs. E. Baldwin Smith, Mrs. Lyman Spitzer, Jr. and Mrs. Emerson Swift.

Candidates for the Northern New Jersey Regional Scholarship to Bryn Mawr will be entertained at a luncheon next Saturday by Mrs. Frederick Harris in Summit, N. J. Mrs. Emerson Swift of Princeton is president of the scholarship committee.

Little Lecturer Named. The Honorable Lester B. Pearson, Canadian Secretary of State for External Affairs, has been named Stafford Little Lecturer at Princeton University for the current academic year. Mr. Pearson, a former president of the United Nations General Assembly, will give a series of three public lectures next month on the general

Music Notes. The Princeton High School choir will perform "King David," a symphonic psalm by Arthur Honegger, on the evenings of April 15 and 16 in the school auditorium.

Ted D'Arms and Steve Young will alternate as the narrators, while Priscilla Muller wil speak the part of the Witch of Endor. The origina drama was written in French by Rene Morax and consists of acts corresponding to the five successive stations in the life of David: shepherd, leader, war chief, prophet and king.

A recital will be given by Irene Marik, pianist, for the benefit of Sweet Briar College on Saturday, April 23, at 8:30 p.m. in the Princeton High auditorium. Tickets may be obtained through Mrs. Ralph Rotnem, 130 Stockton Street.

Miss Marik has performed in most European capitals and in Town Hall, Constitution Hall, the National Gallery of Art, and elsewhere in this country. A graduate of the Royal Academy of Music in Budapest, she studied with the late Bela Bartok and Imre Stefania (a pupil of Busoni) and with George Woodhouse in England.

PRINCETON TELEVISION

Dr. Alan Downer of the University's English Department concluded the current "Princeton '55" television series with a kind of academic variety show highlighting the American Hero in the popular theatre.

The progrom had interesting material and a boost from Dr. Downer's lively presentation and comments, many of them needling a bit at his video viewers. Though one gained an impression of haste in preparation, the numerous acted and danced scenes were most helpful in illustrating Dr. Downer's remarks.

His thesis was well presented, but a more comprehensive concluding summary would have been welcome. Nevertheless it was a good show and a strong conclusion to the excellent series of programs.

The University's television series of this year and last have set a high standard for educational television and they have definitely been the best of their kind on view in the east.

The problems of how to compress a wealth of fact and opinion gained in academic atmosphere into a half-hour program which makes sound use of television's assets are difficult ones, but the exploratory Princeton series have accomplished a great deal in meeting them.

The personalities and resources of Princeton and many another university are considerable, so it is to be hoped that "Princeton '55" will be resumed shortly and that other institutions can join in an exceptionally valuable venture, one that benefits audiences, the TV industry and the schools themselves.

HARSANYI CONDUCTS: The Princeton Symphony Orchestra led by its conductor, Nicholas Harsanyi, in rehearsal. The date for its next concert in McCarter Theatre is April 29.

subject, "Democracy in World Politics."

This series of lectures marks the 56th anniversary of the establishment of the Henry Stafford Little Lectureship. Mr. Pearson will speak on consecutive evenings, April 12, 13 and 14.

Founded in 1899 by Henry Stafford Little of the Princeton Class of 1844, the lectureship was an expression of the donor's interest in public affairs and his admiration for Grover Cleveland. Besides the former President of the United States, Little lecturers have included John Foster Dulles, George F. Kennan, Albert Einstein and General George Marshall.

Town Club Dance Planned. The Town Club of Princeton will hold an "April Fool's Day Dance" this Friday at Avalon, 59 Bayard Lane, at 8:30 p.m. The price of admission will be $1.00.

Leonard Newton is chairman of the committee planning the affair. Robert Pressley will serve as master of ceremonies, while those participating in the program include Mr. and Mrs. James Echert, Thomas Tang, Miss Effie Daiker, Miss Mary Snyder and Bruce Rankin.

Other committee chairmen include Miss Lee Gargan, entertainment; Miss Beverly Lindsay, decorations; Miss Barbara Miller, sketches and drawings, and Miss Florence Chachowski, food.

Marriage Course Set. The first of four sessions of the "Preparation for Marriage" course sponsored by the Planned Parenthood Committee of Princeton will be held Wednesday in the First Presbyterian Church. The course is open without charge to anyone over 18 years of age.

The Rev. Dr. John R. Bodo, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will open the meeting with a talk on "The Emotional Basis for Marriage." The problem of "Personality Development, Adjustment and Problem Sharing" will be discussed by Dr. Muriel M. Gardiner, a psychiatrist and psychoanalyst.

Dr. Gardiner received her M.D. degree at the University of Vienna and has been associated with two New Jersey state hospitals as well as serving as director of mental hygiene clinics in four New Jersey counties. She is at present in private practice.

Scouts to Attend Conference. Some 13 Senior Girl Scouts of this area will participate in an all-day conference Saturday at the Asbury Park High School. Those attending from Princeton include Sandra Waymer, Erica Hamilton, Carolyn Page, Jean Schrader, Freya Wulf, Sandra Black, Renny Travers, Carol Belles, Carol Anderson, Mireille Kriz, Ann Wood, Ann Willis and Donna Maxwell.

Some 400 girls are expected to attend the conference, which will be the only one for this area this year. Mrs. Heath Lickfelder, Mrs. Edwin Bevanese and Mrs. LeRoy Page will accompany the group.

Point System's Progress. More than 7,000 drivers have had their licenses revoked as a result of New Jersey's point system for recording traffic offenses used during the past two and a half years. Motor Vehicle Director Frederick J. Gassert, Jr. feels that the system has made drivers safety conscious and that it has had a hand in cutting the state accident toll.

Under the system, a driver is debited with points for each traffic offense—four for speeding, six for reckless driving, eight for leaving the scene of an accident and 12 for drunken driving or responsibility for a fatal accident. Other violations bring three points; there is also a three-point "bonus" for three convictions within an 18-month period.

Twelve points within a three-year period bring a drover up for a hearing before the State Motor Vehicle Division. This usually results in suspension of the offender's license for a period ranging from a few days to six months or a year.

Of the 2,883 revocations last year, only 158 were for periods of shorter duration than 30 days. Indefinite suspensions were leveled against 194 drivers. A few of these may never get their licenses back.

The point system is designed to discipline the chronic offenders or "repeaters," as the division labels them. Last year 94% of these repeaters did not commit further offenses.

Of last year's 2,883 repeaters, only 27 were women. Fifty-nine percent were less than 30 years old and one in five was under 21.

The point system was relatively novel when New Jersey, the third state to use the system, put it into effect in July, 1952. Now some 12 to 15 states have similar methods of combatting traffic offenders.

Just how much the point system has meant as a safety factor is difficult to estimate, but 1954 was the safest year in the history of New Jersey highways. The death toll was 3.8 for each hundred million miles of car travel, compared to a national average of 6.5.

Mercer Record Better. While state traffic deaths are running ahead of last year, Mercer County is currently below the total to date of a year ago, when the county was the scene of an exceptionally high number of deaths caused by auto.

The figures for Mercer show that seven persons have lost their lives in motor vehicle accidents to date, compared with 13 in the corresponding period a year ago. Statewide, auto deaths total 136, compared with 132 in 1954.

Notes on Service Men. Private John M. Emery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Emery of Pretty Brook Road, is scheduled to arrive in San Diego, Calif., in the next few weeks with the second group of the 1st Marine Division to be ordered home from Korea. The detachment will be stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

I., aboard the destroyer USS Powers from a six weeks training cruise in the Caribbean. Ports visited during the cruise included San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Kingston, Jamaica.

While in the Caribbean, the Powers aided in the rescue of a Navy plane crew after the plane had been forced down due to engine failure some 325 miles off the Florida coast. The plane was landed near a Liberian freighter bound for Rotterdam, the Netherlands, and the Powers intercepted the ship to return the Naval avaitors to their squadron.

Elmer F. Twyman, teleman seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Twyman of 17 Springdale Road, recently returned to Boston after a month of operations in the Caribbean aboard the heavy cruiser USS Salem. DONOVAN'S 'E' MEN: Coach Eddie Donovan is banking on Captain John Easton (right), the baseball team's leading slugger, and pitcher Dick Emery, to give the Tigers a good season this spring.

Sports in Princeton

Baseball Without Practice. Although the baseball team has had less outdoor practice this spring than during any comparable time in the past decade, the season will open Saturday as scheduled, barring a return to the sub-freezing cold, driving rain or even unseasonal snow that has plagued the squad throughout most of March. The initial contest involves a road trip to Philadelphia, with Temple providing the opposition at 3 o'clock.

Monday will bring City College of New York to University Field at 2:30, with Lehigh following on Tuesday at the same hour. A game at New Brunswick against Rutgers is set for 3:30 Wednesday, while Villanova comes here Thursday and the University of Maine is booked for Friday.

These latter two games begin, respectively, at 2:30 and 3. Saturday provides an oddity unduplicated in April schedules in many years: an open Saturday. Pennsylvania had been scheduled at Philadelphia but asked to have the game cancelled on the theory that a number of the players wanted a three-day Easter weekend holiday. If the Quakers can turn out a good team on that sort of attitude toward pre-league practice, more power to them.

The date will accordingly remain unfilled, unless Maine is rained out Friday and stays over on Saturday. If both teams are sufficiently eager for baseball and the New England nine is unscheduled elsewhere, an additional contest could be booked in any case.

Eddie Donovan will use a variety of players in the battery and a couple of the infield positions to provide needed experience and to see where his greatest strength lies. Senior Dick Emery will probably start at Temple, but because of the cold and lack of practice the team has encountered, is not likely to go much more than three innings.

Juniors Craig McClelland and Jim Gibson, both lefthanders, and sophomores Lee Ford and Ron Nelson are other probable starters in these early contests. Junior Dick Martin and sophomore Ed MacMillan are the primary choices for the catching assignment, with neither one yet a definite selection. At first, it will be either Jimmy Griffin or Bill Agnew, with the former's fielding ability getting him the nod at the outset.

Royce Flippin is the choice at second and, with Captain John Easton, is expected to provide the Tigers' one-two punch at the plate. Easton hits the long ball (he had a .471 slugging average last spring), while Flippin—football captain-elect—was the top hitter with a .349 average.

Outfield Well Set. Hank Thomay, whose potential hitting ability is high, will cover third again. Jim Perkins, a reserve infielder of a year ago, and sophomores Larry Durante and Bart Reitz are still battling for the shortstop berth.

The Tiger outfield is well set with veterans Gordy Gray and Pete Millard, the latter a lefthanded swinger, flanking Easton in left and right. A reserve trio of Barry Kessler, Frank Mountcastle and Tom Quay is available, with several promising sophomores also bolstering the Nassau nine in this department. Easton, Gray and Millard will, however, be hard to budge from starting positions, since all three are better than average defensive players.

Just how far Princeton can go this season will depend on its pitching strength and its ability to fill the big gaps at catcher and shortstop created by the graduation of Eddie Stimpson and Dick Savage. Defending champion Navy and Yale are favored to provide the stiffest opposition in the Ivy League, with the Elis possibly the best bet in the ten-team circuit.

The Tigers must play both teams away, and also have trips to Hanover and Ithaca. As usual, the 45-game schedule is crowded into a six-week period, with the weather man almost invariably batting in the cleanup position when it comes to determining the outcome of the race. A single rainy weekend along the Atlantic seaboard can throw the tightly-knit schedule into large-scale confusion.

Television Policy in Doubt. It will be a matter of some weeks before the television policy for the 1955 football season is established. Broad outlines of the plan have been approved by members of the NCAA, but the regional rights granted for the first time leave much to be discussed around the conference table.

Under the plan that prevented possible dissolution of the NCAA itself, seven Saturday dates and Thanksgiving Day will bring one game on TV throughout the nation. Five other Saturdays will involve regional telecasts, with the number limited only to the number of networks and independent stations interested in carrying the games within each of the NCAA's eight regions. Obviously, opportunity is greatest in the heavily-populated east.

The National Broadcasting Company has been awarded the rights to the national telecasts. If nothing else, this is proof of the fact that Canada's 12-man version of football that NBC carried last year in competition with the NCAA-sponsored games over the ABC network failed to interest U.S. sports followers.

Colleges, individually and in leagues or conferences, are now busy determining how best to take advantage of the regional plan. No little confusion may result before the air clears, since a big eastern independent might seek to gain TV sponsorship for its two biggest games while the Ivy League and the Eastern College Athletic Conference were simultaneously planning package programs to offer networks and potential advertisers.

Chances of real conflict between the Ivy group and the larger E.C.A.C., which has 100-plus members, are small. However, it seems logical that more than one game may be televised in this section of the country on "regional Saturdays" and the chances of avoiding competition with ticket sales in many an area are almost non-existent. Television is obviously going to be a major problem in both amateur and professional sports for years to come.

Short Notes. The track team heads southwards as the University's vacation week begins for its annual trip to North Carolina. The first meet of the outdoor season is set for Wednesday against North Carolina at Chapel Hill, while Duke is on the slate Friday at Durham.

Trimmed by a solid 10-2 count in a practice game against Hofstra last Saturday, the lacrosse team opens its season this Thursday afternoon against Dartmouth on Poe Field. The ever-rugged Mount Washington Club is figured to be more than a match for the Tigers Saturday at Baltimore.

Maryland will provide the opposition Wednesday on its College Park field, with the Terrapins favored. If the Tigers should take this one, they'll be extra tough the rest of the season.

Bart Leach of Pennsylvania won the nomination as the Ivy Basketball League's most valuable player, beating out Bud Haabestad, Princeton captain, and Columbia's sophomore, Chet Forte. Leach was a major asset to the Quakers but chances are there will always be one shot in his career that he'll particularly remember.

In the Columbia-Penn playoff in Dillon Gym, the Lions were leading 73-71 and the Quakers got the ball on a jump with 47 seconds to go. Moving down court, Penn killed the clock to give Leach one shot that would tie the score and send the game into overtime. With eight seconds left, he took an overhead jump from the foul circle and missed, the losers seeing the league title they once had virtually wrapped up fall outside the rim with the ball.

No Princeton player made the All-Ivy hockey team, but Captain George Hackl, Captain-elect George Scragg, Charlie Pratt and Matt Plum all received honorable mention. Hackl and Pratt with 11 points each were high for Princeton in the individual scoring race, which went to Harvard's fine junior, Bill Cleary. His total was a tremendous 37, almost double that of his nearest competitor, Dan Keefe of Brown, who was credited with 19.

STRICTLY LEGAL: Charlie Caldwell, Princeton football coach, is barred by Ivy college regulations from giving his varsity squad spring practice. When the weather was too cold for baseball one chilly spring afternoon, he and son Charlie went outside for a couple of pointers on the gridiron sport. But like many another Princeton boy, young Charlie has his glove ready for baseball. He's in the second form at Princeton Country Day.

a member of Princeton University's class of 1953.

Private Victor A. J. Van Lint of 217-B Eisenhower Street has qualified as an Expert Rifleman with the M-1 rifle during his basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. He will be awarded the Expert Qualification Badge for rifle which he will wear throughout his army career.

In order to qualify, basic trainees at Fort Jackson learn to dismantle the weapon, the safety rules and its operation. The score received during some three days of firing on the "Known Distance" range is his qualification. Expert is the highest qualification for weapon firing.

Guidance Center Recognized. The Mercer County Child Guidance Center, a private clinic treating children with emotional problems, has been admitted to the American Association of Psychiatric Clinics for Children, according to Dominick A. Colangelo, administrative director of the center. Recognition by the association marks an important step in the development of the clinic.

Established in 1950 as a demonstration clinic on a part-time basis, the clinic has grown into a full-time operation with a permanent staff. From the 20 families aided in the initial year the clinic has expanded its services so that it provided help to 185 families in 1954.

The American Association of Psychiatric Clinics for Children, founded in 1948, is made up of a group of some 100 child guidance clinics organized to maintain the highest possible standards of practice in the field of child psychiatry. Dr. Edwin D. Rogers of Princeton is a staff psychiatrist with the guidance center, which is located at 2 Whittlesey Road, Trenton.

in the folds. Another dress—this one cocktail length—has rows of center-sewn ruffles around the skirt and the bodice. Still another in rose has 13 rows of tiny ruffles from waist to hemline.

Two shades of blue—powder and royal—combine in a dress that manages to be extremely effective without any ruffles at all that we can recall. Prices on these junior dresses start at about $28.95.

On the daytime junior rack there are cottons, silks and synthetics. "Pontung," for example, is a thick and thin rayon weave, made up into a navy dress with wide white collar and three-quarter sleeves.

White cotton forms the background for a print of hooked fish in red with black lines. A brilliant red jacket has the print lining. (Also orange or turquoise).

A white cotton has sprigs of blue flowers, a belt at the natural waistline, and another belt-like strip below. Blue linen, cut in a sheath, has a five-inch square of gathered blue satin right in the middle, to serve as part of a belt, or a buckle without a belt to call its own.

Spring-weight suits are $46.95, or so, many of them with boxy jackets, some with skirt, blouse and jacket. We found a grey worsted, and a light wool with the green of pale new leaves. The Shop has short jackets or orlon, too—wear them over all those ruffles.

No Salt in the Milk. Not an April Fool joke, but a sober scientific fact: whole, unprocessed milk has 475 milligrams of sodium per quart, and if you are on a low-sodium diet, this is not so good. The Walker-Gordon people, best known for their cow merry-go-round, have developed Lo-Sodium milk, a whole milk that is processed to eliminate 90% of the sodium content of natural milk.

The process by which this is done is called ion-exchange which is the same thing that softens your water, purifies fruit juices and de-ashes whey (whatever that means). The adaptation of ion-exchange to the production of milk was worked out in California with the cooperation of heart authorities. It's the first fluid low sodium milk available in Princeton and the surrounding area.

If you are interested, talk to your milkman, or telephone the Walker-Gordon plant at Plainsboro 3-2750.

Good and Cheap . . . are not always synonymous, but in this case they are. You know, of course, how all the big publishers are leaping into the lucrative pocketbook field.

In a recent visit to the Princeton Book Mart, 11 Palmer Square, we were confronted with half a dozen new paper-back title lists. Viking is showing its famous Portables in $1.25 paper covers, to begin with. Then Modern Library has come full circle with its 95c paper editions. (They started it all, many years ago, remember?)

Doubleday appears on the scene with its Anchor series at 65c and $1.25 including such impressive titles as the Aeneid, "Eight Essays" by Edmund Wilson and Joseph Conrad's "Secret Agent." Knopf's Vintage books at 95c offer "Death in Venice," Gilbert Highet on teaching and Alfred Einstein on music. We even found an abridged (691 pages) "Decline and Fall."

No paper backs for Anne Lindbergh's newest book. This hard-shelled volume, "Gift From the Sea," is a slim thing at $2.75 and the Book Mart tells us that it's selling as fast as anything they've had in months.

There is also a new guide to Europe by David Dodge ('55 edition), complete with autograph and latest hot tips on currency; a new Good Housekeeping Cook Book that's not even published yet it's so new, and a new View Master for $9.75 that has a built-in light, operated by flashlight batteries, and a new lens that makes the pictures twice as large as before. Uses the same reels—you needn't replace your collection with new ones.

a member of Princeton University's class of 1953.

Private Victor A. J. Van Lint of 217-B Eisenhower Street has qualified as an Expert Rifleman with the M-1 rifle during his basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. He will be awarded the Expert Qualification Badge for rifle which he will wear throughout his army career.

In order to qualify, basic trainees at Fort Jackson learn to dismantle the weapon, the safety rules and its operation. The score received during some three days of firing on the "Known Distance" range is his qualification. Expert is the highest qualification for weapon firing.

Guidance Center Recognized. The Mercer County Child Guidance Center, a private clinic treating children with emotional problems, has been admitted to the American Association of Psychiatric Clinics for Children, according to Dominick A. Colangelo, administrative director of the center. Recognition by the association marks an important step in the development of the clinic.

Established in 1950 as a demonstration clinic on a part-time basis, the clinic has grown into a full-time operation with a permanent staff. From the 20 families aided in the initial year the clinic has expanded its services so that it provided help to 185 families in 1954.

The American Association of Psychiatric Clinics for Children, founded in 1948, is made up of a group of some 100 child guidance clinics organized to maintain the highest possible standards of practice in the field of child psychiatry. Dr. Edwin D. Rogers of Princeton is a staff psychiatrist with the guidance center, which is located at 2 Whittlesey Road, Trenton.

in the folds. Another dress—this one cocktail length—has rows of center-sewn ruffles around the skirt and the bodice. Still another in rose has 13 rows of tiny ruffles from waist to hemline.

Two shades of blue—powder and royal—combine in a dress that manages to be extremely effective without any ruffles at all that we can recall. Prices on these junior dresses start at about $28.95.

On the daytime junior rack there are cottons, silks and synthetics. "Pontung," for example, is a thick and thin rayon weave, made up into a navy dress with wide white collar and three-quarter sleeves.

White cotton forms the background for a print of hooked fish in red with black lines. A brilliant red jacket has the print lining. (Also orange or turquoise).

A white cotton has sprigs of blue flowers, a belt at the natural waistline, and another belt-like strip below. Blue linen, cut in a sheath, has a five-inch square of gathered blue satin right in the middle, to serve as part of a belt, or a buckle without a belt to call its own.

Spring-weight suits are $46.95, or so, many of them with boxy jackets, some with skirt, blouse and jacket. We found a grey worsted, and a light wool with the green of pale new leaves. The Shop has short jackets or orlon, too—wear them over all those ruffles.

No Salt in the Milk. Not an April Fool joke, but a sober scientific fact: whole, unprocessed milk has 475 milligrams of sodium per quart, and if you are on a low-sodium diet, this is not so good. The Walker-Gordon people, best known for their cow merry-go-round, have developed Lo-Sodium milk, a whole milk that is processed to eliminate 90% of the sodium content of natural milk.

The process by which this is done is called ion-exchange which is the same thing that softens your water, purifies fruit juices and de-ashes whey (whatever that means). The adaptation of ion-exchange to the production of milk was worked out in California with the cooperation of heart authorities. It's the first fluid low sodium milk available in Princeton and the surrounding area.

If you are interested, talk to your milkman, or telephone the Walker-Gordon plant at Plainsboro 5-2750.

Good and Cheap . . . are not always synonymous, but in this case they are. You know, of course, how all the big publishers are leaping into the lucrative pocketbook field.

In a recent visit to the Princeton Book Mart, 11 Palmer Square, we were confronted with half a dozen new paper-back title lists. Viking is showing its famous Portables in $1.25 paper covers, to begin with. Then Modern Library has come full circle with its 95c paper editions. (They started it all, many years ago, remember?)

Doubleday appears on the scene with its Anchor series at 65c and $1.25 including such impressive titles as the Aeneid, "Eight Essays" by Edmund Wilson and Joseph Conrad's "Secret Agent." Knopf's Vintage books at 95c offer "Death in Venice," Gilbert Highet on teaching and Alfred Einstein on music. We even found an abridged (691 pages) "Decline and Fall."

No paper backs for Anne Lindbergh's newest book. This hard-shelled volume, "Gift From the Sea," is a slim thing at $2.75 and the Book Mart tells us that it's selling as fast as anything they've had in months.

There is also a new guide to Europe by David Dodge (55 edition), complete with autograph and latest hot tips on currency; a new Good Housekeeping Cook Book (that's not even published yet it's so new, and a new View Master for $9.75 that has a built-in light operated by flashlight batteries, and a new lens that makes the pictures twice as large as before. Uses the same reels—you needn't replace your collection with new ones.

WE NOMINATE

The hundred or more Princetonians who this past week—in the face of calamity—proved all that is meant by one of the most heart-warming of all proverbs, "Love and help thy neighbor." At precisely 4:41 p.m., Tuesday, March 22d, an inexplicable, ground-hugging twister swooped out of the West, skipped over the railroad tracks at Princeton Junction, ricocheted through the Conover & Emmons lumberyard and smashed with unimaginable force into the warehouse of Bohren's Moving and Storage Company. Seconds later, after some 7,000 square feet of roof had swirled into space and two fortress-thick sidewalls had crumbled, a Princeton business firm was confronted with ruin.

At the moment no one had either the time or the inclination to keep a minute-by-minute account of just what transpired. It was nasty cold, and was raining intermittently, and hundreds of carefully stored pieces of furniture, paintings and filing-cases, valued at thousands of dollars, were at the mercy of the elements. Neighbors started appearing on the scene. A photographer rigged up a temporary lighting-system; the farmer next door placed his barn at the victims' disposal; Conover & Emmons and H. & R. Motors swung into action; chaos and despair gave way to neighbor-organized order. By 6:00 p.m. it was apparent that Bohren's had "even more friends than it had troubles."

From all quarters of the community came assistance and countless offers of assistance. The Princeton Junction Volunteer Fire Company manned emergency generators, electricians worked miracles and Prince Chevrolet, Inc. provided floodlights. Tarpaulins to serve as temporary roofing were made immediately available by the University, Princeton's Company B (253d Tank Battalion, N.J. National Guard) and the Gilbert Construction Company of Kingston. Loaned trucks trundled furniture across the road to the H. & R. garage, which had been cleared for emergency storage purposes. The Lions Club of Princeton canceled its regular Tuesday meeting and some 25 of its members, many of them unaccustomed to the aches and pains of heavy physical work, sweated past midnight.

Nor did it all stop there. Executives of Educational Testing Service and commuters "back from New York" worked shoulder-to-shoulder with the Lions, while Renwick's, the Princeton Junction General Store and nearby families ferried coffee and sandwiches throughout the evening. The next morning two of Bohren's competitors, Manning's Warehouse Corporation and the Perry Express and Storage Company, dispatched trucks and men to the Junction "to lend a hand." Perawel Trucking offered tractor-trailers and both the First National Bank of Princeton and the Princeton Bank and Trust Company asked Bohren's to call upon them for whatever help might be needed. And from any number of Bohren's customers came expressions of sympathy and offers of financial aid.

For transforming near-disaster into what could be termed a "community triumph;" for strengthening one of the basic American traditions—the concept of neighborliness; for giving Princeton a deep sense of pride in what Princetonians can accomplish under near-impossible conditions; the above-named and the many others who participated in this spontaneous outpouring of friendship are TOWN TOPICS' nominees for

Topics of the Town

Variety. More than 60 events crowd the current Calendar of the Week, while the week's news is just as many-sided. Among the more than 200 classified advertisements in TOWN TOPICS is one offering a house for rent in Oxford, England.

On the news front, one of the community's most famed institutions quietly marked its birthday, while another confirmed expansion plans and the Post Office was told that helicopter service for a town which has a greater volume of air mail than Trenton or New Brunswick will be least temporarily discontinued.

Coming up are regular monthly sessions for the dual governing bodies, while notice of the deadline for absentee ballots reminded voters that primarly elections are less than a fortnight away. There was bad news for the University (a costly fire) and good news for motorists (licenses by mail).

Helicopter Service to End. New York Airways in a letter to Postmaster Murray this week reported that Civil Aeronautics Board restrictions on their mileage will mean the suspension of helicopter air mail service on April 24.

The company said it is making immediate appeal to the CAB for additional mileage, so that the projected end of the special service may be only temporary. A return to the trucking of air mail from its starting point here may mean a delay of as much as a full day in delivery in some cases.

Institute Celebrates 25th. A private dinner at the Princeton Inn on Tuesday marked the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Institute for Advanced Study by Louis Bamberger and his sister, Mrs. Felix Fuld.

Some 80 persons, including Dr. Albert Einstein, members of the Institute, and present and former members of the board of trustees, attended the dinner. Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, director of the world-famous center for high-level research and scholarship, was the principal speaker. Dr. Harold F. Cherniss of the faculty read a brief history prepared by Herbert H. Maass, chairman of the board of trustees.

ETS Adds 10 Nassau. Educational Testing Service this week confirmed the report carried here two weeks ago that it will move part of its steadily-growing operations into the 10 Nassau Street location formerly occupied by Bamman's.

The latest in a series of expansion moves by the testing and research organization will take effect around May 1. The decision as to which of the ETS activities will be relocated in the new quarters has not been made as yet. The lease of 10 Nassau was negotiated through Edmund Cook and Company.

Township Hearings Monday. Three ordinances, all of which reflect growth of Princeton Township, will be up for public hearing Monday evening at 8 in Township Hall.

One measure will create a permanent, paid five-member Board of Assessors to determine property assessments for local improvements. The municipality has been served up to now by three-member boards working voluntarily at the request of the Township Committee. Assessment problems such as the enormously complex Carnassa Park road levies (still to be completed after six months of work) have pointed the way to proposed creation of a permanent board.

Other ordinances to be considered are one that will raise the fee for new sewer connections from $2 to $15, and another which would set up a new formula for charging for sewer service. The latter measure will affect approximately 11% of the Township's sewer users whose water consumption is above 15,000 cubic feet annually.

Absentee Ballot Deadline. The League of Women Voters this week called attention to the fact that this Monday, April 11, is the deadline for applications for au-
